Mrs. Cowles Tells of Peace Jubilee

The whole company adjourned for refreshments. Then my busy time began.

We had been working for a week beforehand to make ready for the feast. It was not a seven-course dinner, my friends, but it was no joke to feed twelve hundred husky Zulus. I would certainly have gone under had it not been for the splendid help given me by my C. E. girls, by Deacon Kumalo, and others. Of course we had no white folks to help us. When at last the crowd turned up to be fed, everything was ready and steaming hot. Since early dawn huge pots of meat and rice and stamp and gravy had been boiling.

All was done to a finish when our royal guests were escorted to the dining room door, (the former dining room of Unzumbé Home). The tables were all set with white cloths, and enameled ware plates and cups, and tin spoons (Unzumbé plate glass). Bouquets of gay bouganvillea were on every table, with plates of oranges and bananas from our garden besides. It was gay, and the grandest tables those chiefs had ever sat at, with the probable exception of our guest from France. We seated the chiefs at the head of the tables, with their head men beside them. Chief Msebenzi, at the head of his table, sat up as straight as an arrow and looked every inch royal. The other chiefs were not so distinguished looking, though dignified, gracious and courtly. About fifty men sat at the tables at a time. Not a woman was allowed, of course. That would have been shocking.

My C. E. girls, dressed in white with white aprons, flew about at the beck and call of everybody, and looked nearly crazy. Now and again my head waitress would roll up her eyes and give me a look of despair, but the girls all kept their heads very well, and I was proud of them. I have to smile now when I think of their distracted faces. The din of conversation was enough to take the roof off, and as for table manners, even my ears, dull of hearing, could hear the crowd eat! And it was not faint distant sounds either. Afterward the streams of tea soaked into our once white table cloths, the bones and banana skins and spilled-over rice would have made New England senses tingle, but fortunately, I was born in Africa! Nevertheless, the whiteness of those same table cloths and the shininess of the spoons left their impression, and were an educative influence. In a room adjoining we had spread a special table for ten—Pastor Goba and our evangelists. How dainty was their eating in contrast to that on the other side of the partition. Christian gentlemen, these were, sitting at the table like white folks, as polite to each other and to the waitress. Good table manners and cleanliness, two of the by-products of missions, in evidence that day.

The chief item on our menu was, of course, the beef. To supply this to that crowd, we had the day before, killed a huge white ox. Such a big, noble creature he was, so fitted to be a sacrifice for the kingdom of God. All the choice bits, the under cut, the tenderloin, etc., had been set aside as special gifts to our royal guests, time-honored portions, known for centuries back to be the tidbits of the kings. Citwaye, one of our splendid men, deeply versed in all the intricate Zulu rules of paying respects to superiors, was assigned the part of cutting up the beef, and of distributing it according to the time-honored rules. He did his part well, though he nearly lost his head as they called to him from all directions. He raced about the place with a carving knife held straight up, shouting and being shouted at.

While our distinguished guests were being fed indoors, the rest of the heathen men, several hundred of them, were roasting meat over dozens of little fires inside of our cattle kraal. Chunks of raw meat were placed upon a piece of sheet iron, for their consumption. From these pieces, long zigzag strips of meat were cut, and then most skillfully roasted on spits over the open fires. Frederick perched upon the cattle kraal fence, remarked afterwards, that "You could hear the whole kraal full of jaws going, and it sounded like a sawmill." The end of a strip of broiled beef would be seized between a pair of powerful jaws, and then be swiftly chewed clear to the other end of it without a break, "like a rabbit eats," was Frederick's comment. Some who were so fortunate, would get a piece of tripe, shake it out, wring it like a rag, twist it into a roll, then eat it with the greatest relish, without any washing or cooking! One fellow took a handful of the contents of the ox's stomach, squeezed the juice into the other hand and drank the liquid down with great relish. Am I shocking you? In contrast, please keep in mind the pastor's table, and yet, those evangelists, and the pastor himself, I think, were born in heathenism.

Good Morning! Have You Eaten Your Cake of Yeast?

Our subject had its beginning in a booklet entitled "Fleischmann's Compressed Yeast and Good Health." Storekeeper didn't read the title at first, he just handed out the booklets left by the yeast man, and supposed recipient patrons would learn more about making good bread. Later, when customers began to buy yeast in half-dozen lots, Storekeeper was puzzled—thought he'd better read the booklet himself.

"Fleischmann's Compressed Yeast and Good Health" tells us something new of yeast, what that familiar cake will do as a remedy for many ailments, among them, pimples, blackheads, boils, carbuncles, constipation, anemia and malnutrition. The booklet says that yeast has long been known for its medicinal value, but that in the past the difficulty was to get said yeast in quality sufficiently uniform to give dependable results. In Fleischmann's Yeast we now have this uniformity and dependableness; so, to cure ourselves of whatever is the matter with us, it's high time to be getting the yeast habit.

In support of these statements, the booklet quotes some pretty high authority. Three of America's leading hospitals conducted experiments by treating patients with yeast. Results were most amazing! Of ten cases of constipation, nine were improved or cured; sixteen out of seventeen cases of boils were improved or cured; twenty-five cases of skin eruptions were improved without exception! Many patients treated successfully for specific diseases also showed marked gain in general health. These experiments were not for the purpose of advertising any special brand of yeast; hence the results are all the more convincing.

Assuming then, that one is convinced, what is to be done? Use one-half of a yeast cake, before meals, three times a day—so says "Fleischmann's Compressed Yeast and Good Health" (this booklet is to be had for the asking). Of course the yeast is to be applied internally—that is, chewed and swallowed. That is why, at the beginning, we said: "Good morning! Have you eaten your cake of yeast?"

Marie Purnort Is Honor Guest

Monday evening Mrs. James Turner entertained at her home in Campbell for Miss Marie Purnort. Nearly forty young people were present and dancing was enjoyed until after midnight. A dainty light lunch was served and the guests departed with a cheer for Miss Purnort. Mrs. Turner and her sister, Mrs. Nutting, are to be congratulated on their successful effort to give every one present a good time.

The dainty programs were painted by Mrs. Turner herself and were distinctly an innovation. The fine dancing room upstairs was tastefully decorated with pepper branches and mistletoe, the mistletoe adding a pleasing effect.

Punch was to be had at all times and with Mrs. Turner as chief mixer it was consumed as fast as it could be made. Mrs. Nutting kept things moving upstairs, was floor manager and everything else that needed her attention. The guests could be nothing but well pleased with the results of their efforts.

Interesting Pageant Planned for Sunday

"The Striking of America's Hour," a splendid Americanization pageant, will be given under the direction of a committee of the Missionary society, at the Congregational church Sunday evening.

This is the second of these entertainments to be given under the auspices of these ladies, and judging by the results of the first, attendance at this one will be amply worth while.

Representatives of various groups, in our own country and foreign nations, will appear in costume, and from the text it would seem that the affair should be very interesting.

The parts are being taken by the older young people this time, several of our college students participating.

BOY SCOUTS

DESERT BOY TO BE A SCOUT

A letter from the hot desert stretches near Lund, Utah, aroused the interest of scout officials in Salt Lake City. It was written by a woman from the district in the interest of a lad "who shows an interest in everything good," and whom the writer declares is too bright to become merely a struggling, half-starved farmer on the desert.

The writer had recently read a story of a lad just turning twelve who was about to attain his ambition of becoming a scout. Believing that scouting might be the very channel through which the little hero of the desert might be lifted into a bigger life, she asked for any scout literature for the boy.

Scout Executive Oscar Kirkham has written in reply that the lad may become a pioneer scout without affiliation with any troop; that there is a scout magazine published for the boys, and that the boy may become a candidate for scout membership by communicating with New York headquarters of the national organization. Mr. Kirkham declares that he feels there is now another worthwhile convert made to scout activities in the little farmer of Lund.

BUILDING A LODGE BY LAKE.

SCOUTS AS PRIMITIVE ARTISTS.

Des Moines boy scouts are in a fair way to become rivals of the Indians and Mexicans in the art of pottery making.

Only the scouts do not use clay. They employ sandstone, found at "The Ledges," the summer camp of the scouts, near Boone, in shaping pitchers, match-cases, bowls, plaques and a dozen other different articles that a connoisseur would rave over.

Gilbert H. Gendall, boy scout executive, has a display table in his office filled with the handicraft of the young sandstone artisans.

The contour and design were acquired by using a harder surfaced stone on the sandstone.

Detroit boy scouts broke a national record in their survey of the city in connection with the "clean-up and paint-up" campaign. It has been the custom in larger cities to ascertain the need of cleaning up in a canvass prior to the campaign, and in 1917 Cincinnati set a record with a total of 7,200 reports of unsightly or unsanitary conditions needing attention.

In the board of commerce session it was discovered that the boy scouts who had been busy for two weeks making the survey had turned in more than 12,000 report cards.

Highways in Mexico.

The government of Mexico has committed itself to the policy of constructing at the earliest possible time a system of modern highways that shall connect all the principal cities and parts of the country.

LOVE REJECTED, BOY 12 YEARS OLD, SEEKS DEATH

Chicago. — Benny Sokolowski, 12 years old, is at a hospital thoroughly thawed out after having been cramped into an ash can in freezing weather for a day and a night. Benny was the base of an infantile example of the age-old triangle, and the other two sides were formed by Annie Barzyk, 13, and Florence Moeller, 11. As a result he had, he said, crawled into the ash can seeking death.

Tightly clasped in his little fist when a policeman dragged him from his refuge, Benny had a letter from his "loving wife, Annie," a strange grouping of childish devotion to a playmate, nature abnegation and sorrow which usually accompanies triangles.

"I know you love Florence, and I know you don't love me any more," read the letter. "But, oh, if you only knew how I love you. Don't tell Florence how much I love you or she will be mad. If you only knew how much she loves you. Oh, I hate her."

"But if you love her better than me, you can have her. I love you, dear. I love you, dear."

HALT SOCIALIST SLAUGHTER, IS APPEAL TO ALLIES

Berlin. — Appeals to world workers, especially Socialists in the United States, England, France and Italy, asking that those governments take steps to stop the alleged "slaughter" of communists and Socialists in Hungary, are being sent out by the central government board of the Austrian Social Democracy.

It is asserted that, whereas 500 victims were charged up to the Bela Kun regime in Hungary, more than ten times that number have been executed on conviction at drumhead court martial on "flimsy warrants" issued with alleged connivance of Admiral Horthy, in command of the Hungarian government troops at present.

Entente governments are jointly responsible for present occurrences, the appeal declares. They diligently sought to protect bourgeoisie from the "red terror," it is said, but they are "not making an effort to halt the counter revolutionary rampage."

The Vorwaerts is informed that an entente commission recently found the bodies of sixty-two communists hanging from trees in a patch of woods near Budapest.

LAW AGAINST USE OF FOREIGN TONGUE IN SCHOOLS UPHOLD

Lincoln. — Constitutionality of a state law designed to curtail use of the foreign languages in Nebraska schools as an Americanization measure, was upheld by the state supreme court.

The law, which applies to all public, private, parochial and denominational schools in the state, provides:

That foreign languages shall not be employed in giving instructions on any subject to pupils below the ninth grade.

That foreign languages may be taught as languages in the ninth and higher grades.

That foreign languages may be employed in the ninth and higher grades in so far as the teaching of such languages may require, but may not be used as a medium of instruction in any other subjects.

Validity of the law was attacked by the Nebraska district of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, and St. Francis Catholic church of South Omaha, whose attorneys charged among other things that its operation would interfere with religious liberty.

SKELETON OF MAN BELIEVED MURDER VICTIM

Spokane. — Officials were proceeding on the theory that Thomas Gallagher, believed to be the man whose skeleton was found Thursday near the county tuberculosis sanatorium east of this city, was murdered and robbed.

This theory was advanced by Coroner W. M. Newman, who said clothing on the body apparently had been cut with a knife and that articles of wearing apparel and a small quantity of money had been found concealed in the brush fifty feet from where the body was found. An address in California, where Gallagher evidently had been receiving his mail, found in a suitcase discovered near the body, was withheld by the coroner pending further investigation.

NO SANTA FOR KIDS, PA KILLS 3 AND HIMSELF

Seattle (Wash.). — Three Seattle children are dead of bullet wounds inflicted by their father, W. M. Potter, 38, real estate salesman, who night before Christmas shot them as they lay in bed, and then killed himself. The oldest one, 5, and the youngest, 17 months. The father, it was said, was despondent because on account of his illness and financial troubles, there was to be no Christmas celebration for his children.

FARMER FOUND DEAD; SHOT THROUGH HEAD

Albany (Ore.). — James C. Burch, a farmer who lived near here, was found dead in a shed at his home Christmas with a gunshot in his head. Burch had gone to the shed to get a small rifle, intending to carry it while showing two visitors over the farm. Indications, the coroner said after an investigation, were that he had shot himself accidentally.

POLICEMAN AND NEGROES ENGAGE IN GUN DUEL

Oakland. — Two persons were injured early Christmas morning in a pistol duel between two bandits and a policeman. Policeman P. A. Price, at Third and Henry streets, saw two negroes holding up two men and two women. He ordered the bandits to surrender, and his command was met with a volley of shots.

His revolver emptied, Price struggled with the men when one of them at the point of a revolver forced him to walk across the street. The bandit then picked up his wounded companion and carried him into the railroad yards near by. Price gave chase, but lost them in the darkness.

William Wood, a negro living at Vallejo, was struck in the arm by one of the shots. He was taken to the emergency hospital.

MAN ATTACKS WIFE, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Portland (Ore.). — Grim tragedy stalked in one Portland home Christmas day, that of W. A. Parry, carpenter, whose body is now in the morgue, the result of a self-inflicted bullet wound, and whose wife is in a hospital here suffering from wounds inflicted by Parry before he turned a gun upon himself and fired. Parry, said to have been a sufferer of temporary insanity, is alleged to have attacked his wife with a poker. Her screams aroused the neighborhood, and apparently fearing interference by the neighbors, Parry shot himself. He died on his way to a hospital.

NEVADA WILL VOTE ON REFERENDUM BY WETS

Carson City. — A referendum petition containing 3255 names, asking that the people of the state of Nevada be given an opportunity to vote on the ratification of the national prohibition amendment has been filed with Secretary of State Brodigan.

The petition was ready for filing several weeks ago, but Secretary Brodigan refused to take it until an opinion had been given by Attorney General Fowler of Nevada. The attorney general held that it could be filed, and unless some unforeseen steps are taken by prohibitionists the question will be voted upon at the next election.

100 GALLON BOOTLEG LIQUOR STORE RAIDED

New York. — Four men were arrested December 24th in a raid by federal agents on a Brooklyn liquor store which was declared to be doing a rushing business in home-made whisky. Five barrels of alcohol were seized and a quantity of the whisky, which, according to the agents, was manufactured out of raw alcohol, brown sugar and water.

The place was crowded with customers who were purchasing the liquor in bottles and demijohns at prices ranging from $75 to $100 a gallon. Federal officials said the cost of the "whisky" to the manufacturers did not exceed $6 a gallon.

PRESIDENT SIGNS WAR INSURANCE MEASURE

Washington. — The Sweet bill, increasing the compensation of disabled former service men and enlarging the classes of beneficiaries under the war risk insurance act, was signed by the President. It was announced at the bureau that it is hoped December checks, payable in January and carrying the additional amount, will go out without delay. The bill practically doubles the compensation for some classes of disability.

SANTA REFUSES PLEA FOR HACK SAWS

"Dear Santa, please bring me half a dozen hack saws. Yours esteemed friend, HARRY MERLIN."

W. A. CLARK GIVES 1000 TURKEYS TO EMPLOYEES

Butte (Mont.). — In hundreds of homes Christmas day turkey was provided the Christmas board by former United States Senator W. A. Clark. Every employee of the numerous Clark interests, as in past years, was given a turkey. Clark employees in Butte who received turkeys numbered approximately 1000.

TEXAS CATHEDRAL HAS 185TH YULETIDE MASS

San Antonio (Tex.). — Christmas mass was read in San Fernando Cathedral, established in San Antonio by Franciscan monks when Texas was under the Spanish flag, for the 185th time at midnight Christmas. Bells of the old mission chimed as clearly over the city as when it was the haunt of wolves and Indians.

Marysville. — As a result of the death here of William Mitchell, bootblack, who was held up and shot Monday night, December 22, Tom and Harold Simms, aged 16 and 17, will be charged with murder in the first degree. They were captured at Chico by District Attorney Ray Maxwell and Sheriff C. J. McCoy of Yuba county, after they had bound and gagged William Signet and stolen his automobile.

San Francisco. — Miss Lucienne Bertrand, a Parisienne, arrived Christmas on the Matsonia with a single bottle of champagne which she retrieved from the hands of German invaders at Rheims. When she learned that it would be confiscated, she hastily ordered the trunk in which it was contained returned to the ship. Then she telephoned some friends, who visited her on the boat. Later the party came ashore, bringing the champagne, despite prohibitory laws. But it was not in a bottle.

Benicia. — Christmas at Benicia arsenal was marked by an amazing spectacle. This was a growing fir tree, fifty feet high, standing on an eminence where it is plainly visible from Carquinez straits and the Southern Pacific trains, which was turned into a Christmas tree by soldiers from the arsenal. It was a blaze of light that night, colored electric lights glowing all over it, and at its crest was an immense electric star. A Christmas tree for the officers and men of the post was held in the chapel on Christmas eve.

San Francisco. — Some time Christmas eve death ended the life term that Frank ("Tug") Wilson was serving at San Quentin. When guards made the rounds Christmas morning he was found dead in his cell from natural causes. Prison officials said he had had a slight cold for the past week. He was 50 years old. Wilson was notorious in San Francisco before the fire, and had served five terms at Folsom and two terms at San Quentin previous to his life sentence for robbery in 1905.

Fresno. — When the State Railroad Commission takes up the application of the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation for an increase of rates on January 5 here, Fresno will be prepared with figures from other towns of the state showing a comparison of the rates with Fresno. This decision was reached at a meeting of Mayor W. F. Toomey, President William Glass of the Fresno County Chamber of Commerce, District Attorney C. E. Beaumont, F. M. Hill, manager of the Traffic Association of Fresno; Chris Jorgensen, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, and A. G. Wilson, general manager of the company. It is stated that if the comparison shows that the rates asked by the company in order to yield the allowed return are not out of proportion to the rates in other cities, the increase will probably be granted.

Oakland. — A Mexican by the name of El Pido Ramirez of 680 Isabelle street, Berkeley, was struck and killed by an Alameda electric train at the corner of Seventh and Market streets, Christmas night.

Los Angeles. — The body of Roy Holmes, an automobile mechanic, was found here early December 24 crushed between the front end of his heavy automobile and a high sidewalk curb. Los Angeles. — E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway, said here that the action of President Wilson in postponing the return of the railroads to private ownership from January 1 to March 1 "was probably a good thing for all concerned, in view of the fact that Congress had failed to pass laws for the operation of the roads. It will give everybody a chance to prepare," he said.

San Francisco. — Fourteen men discovered Christmas that the reports of John Barleycorn's death were slightly exaggerated. How they discovered it is a mystery to the police. At any rate, fourteen men were booked at the City Prison on the charge of drunkenness. Lieutenant Tobin, in charge of the City Prison, said the arrests listed as drunk broke all records since the dry law went into effect.

San Francisco. — James R. Mathews, 64 years old, a druggist of Ukiah for thirty-two years, dropped dead from heart failure at Clay and Larkin streets Christmas morning. He had just left the Christmas services of the Golden Gate Commandery, Knights Templar, and was on his way to the home of his son, Ernest J. Mathews, 1558 Clay street, half a block away. Mathews sold his drug business in Ukiah five years ago, but retained his property interests there. While in San Francisco he was employed at the Dinola Pharmacy on Haight street. A widow and three children survive him. The children are Ernest J. Mathews, Mrs. E. A. Le Fleur and Miss Grace Mathews. Mathews was born in Marysville, and has a sister, Mrs. L. W. Burris, living there. The body will be sent to Ukiah. Mathews was a thirty-second degree Mason.

Fowler. — Principal F. P. Hogan of the Fowler school, who came into the limelight because of his report to State Superintendent Will C. Wood of racial schools interfering with the work of the public schools, is ill at his home in Fowler and was not in condition to discuss the subject further than to say that his letter to the State School Department was one asking information as to the law in the premises, and to see if the practice could be legally prohibited. There are two schools here, one conducted by the Armenians and the other by the Japanese. The Armenian school is for adults and primary pupils, and is said to be conducted in the mother tongue. The Japanese school is supposedly for children under school age, a sort of kindergarten, where the English language is taught in conjunction with that of the Japanese.

BROWN THE POPULAR COLOR

Whatever has happened to the designers and the manufacturers that they are trying to clothe the world of women in brown? It's all one sees to walk about the streets and look into shop windows. Golden brown duvetyn suits with sable fur elbow beige gowns, taupe furs, vandyke boots and tobacco gloves, all of which appear to be also made in every tone that one desires, to "match up" a costume. Brown has reappeared after a long absence and it leads with it a new combination. Black and brown have been strangers used together but this season they neighbor with entire felicity. A brown duvetyn or tricolette or jersey may be heavily braided with black braid and edged with monkey fringe. And to turn about, a black satin model may be banded with brown fur in smart effect. Brown is a shade for women with fair skins and fresh color; it is negative tone and needs assistance to make itself felt. Purple, from which brown is made with other tones, is an attractive partner. Old rose or Venetian red help a brown costume, and, of course, gold and most shades of yellow are its natural associates. The ease with which one may find gloves and boots in many shades of brown is one reason why women welcome this color for out-of-door wear. It is a brown season.

All of the brown furs and the various leathers in brown are in demand as trimmings. When the accessories are not naturally of the desired shade they are dyed, as is the case with some beautiful laces which have been treated to a brown bath. Brown face powders are much in vogue in Paris, because brown near the complexion makes one look very pale.

WASHING OF DRESS SHIELDS

Directions Accompanying Article Should Be Followed to Get Satisfactory Results.

If one wishes to get the full value from her dress shields she should follow closely the directions for washing which usually accompany each set of shields, writes Charlotte E. Carpenter of the Colorado Agricultural college.

The sheet rubber, the rubberized cloth and the pyroxylin shield should be washed in warm, not hot, water which contains a few drops of ammonia, one teaspoonful of household ammonia to a quart of water. Use no soap. Dry at natural room temperature. Do no place on radiators or any hot surface. When dry the shields may be pressed with a moderately hot iron.

The balata shields should be soaked in a cold soapsuds made from a mild soap such as Ivory. The naphtha and strong yellow soaps should not be used. Scrub the shields with a stiff brush. Rinse well in cold water. Shape while wet. Dry thoroughly. Do not iron.

NEWEST CORSETS ARE LIGHT

Creations Are Slightly Boned but Shaped to Give Necessary Support to Figure.

The newest corsets remain creations of light-weight fabrics lightly boned, but so shaped as to give useful support to the figure without themselves giving any special evidence of their inclusion as a silhouette influence. The length is still a marked feature, but on account of the scientific placement of the bones and the reduction of such to a minimum, there is not the slightest discomfort in the wearing of the long apron model.

The bust line is a bit higher, at least for those who like the slightly raised line. For slender figures the extension of the material over the waistline is a matter of but two or three inches; and there are models that are hardly more than hip confiners, so little thought do they take of the upper part of the figure.

THE LARGE AND SMALL HATS

A PLEDGE TO SERVE

For God and Country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.

San Francisco.—James P. Malley, convicted by a jury in Judge Michael Roche's court several days ago of violating the criminal syndicalism act was sentenced by Judge Roche to serve an indeterminate sentence of from one to fourteen years in San Quentin.
Asked if he had anything to say, Malley denied he had broken any law of the country and insisted that he had merely exercised a right accorded him by the Constitution of expressing himself freely on the existing form of government and its effects.
As a peroration to his speech Malley shouted: "I would gladly serve ten thousand times the sentence imposed upon me by this court. I suffer for the cause, and I will be vindicated. Free speech must triumph if the sacred institutions of this government are to flourish."
As Malley left the courtroom his wife rushed to him and screamed: "I shall not let you go to jail. You have done nothing wrong." It was with difficulty that the court attaches separated the couple.
Attorney Austin Lewis made a motion for a new trial for Malley, which was taken under advisement.

An Injudicious Knock.
"You can knock a thing in such a way as to boost it," said a government official in an address. "Injudicious orators often and often make this mistake."
"Perhaps you've heard of the revivalist who shouted:
"I tell you, friends, hell contains nothing but chorus girls, cocktails and roulette wheels."
"Thereupon a young man in a back seat yelled:
"O, death, where is thy sting?"
—Detroit Free Press.

His Sphere of Activity.
"I don't know what business is the right one for my son. He is so changeable."
"Then why not get him into the weather bureau?"

"Home, Sweet Home" Has Never Been Translated Into Foreign Language

"Home, Sweet Home," one of most heart-touching and popular songs ever written; one which, it would seem, would make an appeal to all mankind, has never been satisfactorily translated into any foreign language, for the simple reason that in no other language is there a word expressing the ideas and associations which are aroused by the simple English word "home."
The Italian and Spanish "casa," the German "haus" and the Russian "doma" all refer to a building of some kind, and have none of the associations which cluster round the precious English word. The German "heim" is too general to have any particular value.
A Frenchman once translated the hymn "Lead, Kindly Light," and in his hands the beautiful line "The night is dark, and I am far from home" became "La nuit est sombre, et je suis loin de mon foyer," he having been obliged to use for "home" the French word which describes the greenroom of a theater.
Just where "home" is has often been the subject for legal dispute, and it has been generally held that it depends entirely upon the circumstances under which the word was used—it may be a country, a region, a city or a house.

Mother's Cook Book.

During the years in which we live, life will never be again as leisurely and carefree as it has been. The magnitude and importance of the problems of reconstruction of the world's torn mental and material fabric are too great for genial toleration in the future, as in the past, of the mental shrink or the apenditrit of time, and there will be no such toleration.—President Hopkins, Dartmouth College.

Food for Young Children.

A little child who is carefully fed, receives each day at least one food from each of the following groups: Milk, or dishes made of milk; fish, poultry, and eggs.
Bread and other cereal foods. Butter and other wholesome fats. Vegetables and fruits. Simple sweets.
Milk, the natural food for the child, is the most important. A quart of milk a day is the usual required allowance. The greater part of this is given as a drink or on cereals, or with bread, as bread and milk.

Milk is served on fruits that are mildly acid, such as pears, baked apples and berries. Milk is used in soups, custards, junkets and in the place of water for gruels and cereals.
Compared with other foods milk contains much lime but little iron. For this reason egg yolk is always a much needed food to supply the iron. Spinach is also rich in iron.

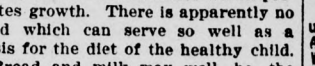

Milk, besides its other good properties, contains a substance which promotes growth. There is apparently no food which can serve so well as a basis for the diet of the healthy child.
Bread and milk may well be the chief, if not the only dish, in the supper for little children. If the milk is not rich, spread the bread with butter. Bread should be at least twenty-four hours old. Toast or crackers may be served occasionally.

Cereals well cooked to soften the fiber, make especially good breakfast dishes as well as desserts. Cereals may be cooked in skim milk, thus giving the child the additional nourishment of the milk which is as good as whole milk if a bit of butter is added.

Rice baked in a slow oven will absorb six times its volume of skim milk. With a few raisins and a bit of sugar this makes an ideal dessert.
Other than fresh milk, such as condensed, evaporated or powdered milk should never be used for children when it is possible to get the fresh milk.
Another way to serve milk to children is in milk soups. The following is a good recipe which may be varied with any thoroughly cooked and rice vegetable: Take two cupsful of milk, one tablespoonful each of flour and butter well mixed, a little salt and two-thirds of a cupful of mashed vegetable. Cook until smooth and not too thick. It may be thinned if a starchy vegetable is used.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn or callus the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.
Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callus without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or hardened callus. If your druggist hasn't any freezone he can get it at any wholesale drug house for you.—Adv.

UGH! A DOSE OF NASTY CALOMEL

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

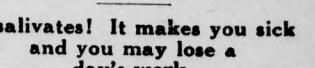

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tonic tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.—Adv.

Character-Building Measures in Minor Cases

Upon the thesis that a thrifty man is a better citizen and "that many of our economic ills and much of our present day social unrest are due directly to thriftlessness," Police and Superior Judges of San Francisco are planning to give persons convicted of minor infractions of the law an alternative of investment in Government securities, such as War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates instead of fining them. Judge T. I. Fitzpatrick, Presiding Judge of the Police Court here, said, "I shall be glad to assist in the movement in this direction, keeping in mind, however, at all times, the provisions of the charter of the city and county."

The alternative of investment in Government securities will be offered whenever it is within the power of the judge to fine or set free the defendant in a misdemeanor case. "This attempt," said another judge, "will give such defendants a chance to help themselves and their Government and cultivate a habit of saving, lack of which we feel is often at the bottom of their transgressions."

Family rows which find their way into court and have many times as their fundamental cause lack of thrift or spendthrift habits, are expected to furnish a rich field for the experiment in penalization to be tried by the San Francisco Judges. As a rule, the judge has in such cases the right to fine or release defendants with a severe lecture, and hereafter it is probable that family rows in San Francisco will really be beginnings of many bank accounts.

The judges will attach only one condition in levying a penalty of investment rather than fining a defendant, and that condition is that the guilty accepting the alternative must keep their securities until the date of maturity. In this way the jurists hope to lead the thrifty into the ways of thrift, sound living and better citizenship.

Electric Welding.

Three methods of electric welding are now generally employed. In "spot" welding the metals are placed in contact and an electric current is sent between them; in "seam" or "line" welding mechanically driven roller electrodes are used, in which the "carbon arc" process—in which an iron pencil has replaced the carbon rod—the metal is melted by the electric arc. In shipbuilding thick steel plates are more profitably joined than by riveting. In butt welds the tensile strength is 90 to 95 per cent of that of the solid plates.

John Goes Alone.

John was a tightwad, but Mary was unaware of the fact until one evening when he had asked her to attend the theater with him. Upon arriving at the theater John stepped up to the box office and purchased one ticket and called out to Mary, waiting close by in the lobby, "Mary, here's where you buy your ticket; I've got mine." A titter passed through the waiting crowd, and so John had to attend the performance alone, while Mary with a crimson face lost herself in the crowd.

Mrs. Cowles Tells of Peace Jubilee

(Concluded)

Of course, no women were allowed in the kraal. One who dared to approach the cattle kraal fence was sent off. The sacred precincts of the kraal are for men, and men only, and always have been, as far back as the memory of any Zulu will carry him. While the men were feasting indoors and in the kraal, the women and children sat in groups upon the grass and ate stamp, sweet potatoes and taro bulbs, from the pans of food which our church people had brought. As far as possible a dash of hot gravy was poured over the stamp, etc., so that none might go away without at least tasting of the beef, which was of course, the outstanding feature of our feast.

As soon as the eating was over, the chiefs expressed their gratitude, said their good-byes, shook hands and departed. By sundown the twelve hundred had all gone, disappearing in all directions over the hills along the countless paths which converge here in this "city set on a hill." At 7 p. m. my C. E. girls went home, after voluntarily washing up the dishes. Then we were left quite alone, with the silence and the crickets and the cry of the whip-poor-wills, and there was only a pair of horns, a hide, the hoofs and a few bones, left as reminders of the day's festivities. But a new era had begun for this old station of my father's; and wasn't it wonderful that the celebration of peace at Umzumbe was coincident with the World's Peace Sunday? We have thought of it since, the difference between your Peace Sunday and ours, but oh! how we hope that peace at Umzumbe will mean as much for the kingdom of God in this whole region as we hope that the world peace will eventually mean for this topsy turvy old world of ours.

I did not expect to make so long a story of the foregoing, but I must briefly tell you one other before I close.

The great chief, Mabojane, has recently died at Dweshulas. Twenty wives, at least a hundred children, and a number of kraals, were his. Doves of cattle also and numberless goats. During the chief's last illness he was often visited by our evangelist, Quanda, the hunchback. Old as he was, bound hand and foot with the fetters of heathenism, tired down by polygamy and drink and witchcraft, still Mabojane loved to hear the Old, Old Story. "There is not a friend like the lowly Jesus," was his favorite hymn, and Quanda and his little band of Christians sang it over and over again, for the evident pleasure of the chief, who on his last night of life, his last call came in the dead of night. Seeing that their chief was dying, his sons called for the horses to be brought. Mounting messengers upon these, they sent them flying thru the darkness, over six miles of rough paths, to call Quanda and the Dweshula Christians. Hurriedly dressing, the Dweshules went, bodily, over to their chief's kraal, leaving behind, to "stay by the stuff," only the women with babies, and the children. Arrived at the chief's kraal, Quanda stooped low and entered the hole of a doorway. There, upon a mat on the floor of his dark hut, lay the dying chief. He was almost gone, but there was still a chance to intercede for him at the throne of grace, before his spirit should fly into that unknown world. How fervently and beautifully Quanda prayed, those of us who know him can imagine. Love, sweetness, faith, power, humility, are the qualities which attract all men, even chiefs, to our lowly Dweshula hunchback. While Quanda prayed the spirit had taken its flight, and who can say what miracle of saving grace may not have been wrought in that last hour in that dirty grass hut.

As soon as the news of the chief's death spread thru the kraal, the loud wailing and screaming began, but Quanda's uplifted hand hushed that and all was still. Later on, all the men of the kraal, a host of them stood in a double line and chanted a funeral dirge. Quanda's description of this was most weird. The deep voices of the men, the swaying of their bodies, the rhythmic chanting, all kept perfect time with the heavy stately tramping of their feet. In the mean time the numerous flocks of goats and herds of cattle were driven into the yard to bellow and bleat, and so to do their share of the mourning.

While this was going on, Quanda was busy in making the coffin from boards which were procured at a near-by trader's. It was Quanda, also, who helped to lift the body into the coffin and to bear it to the grave, which was dug in the place of greatest honor beside the cattle kraal. Quanda preached the funeral sermon, and his little band of Christians sang once again, "There is not a friend like the lowly Jesus," and the Cross was lifted high in that heathen world, as often before, but this time beside the grave of their grand old chief. We all mourn the loss of old Mabojane. Heaten as he was, he had shown himself a friend of all good things. He was keenly interested in his Christian community at Dweshulas and had taken a lively interest in the brick making for a new church there. Before he died he expressed the desire for an iron roof for the new Dweshula church, and said the people must also find some way to make seats. He did not think a thatch roof good enough to cover brick walls, nor did he want his people to worship sitting on the floor. These last wishes of Mabojane have had great effect on the people there. Quanda had told us that by a very great effort his people could perhaps raise $50 in all towards their church. Since the chief's death, several mass meetings have been held and the people have raised and brought to Mr. Cowles already $250 towards iron for the new roof and they hope to raise another $250. If they succeed in doing this it will be little short of a miracle. There again it is dear old Quanda for it was he who led off with the gift of a cow! Quanda's salary has just been raised to the enormous sum of $150 a year! He has a wife and nine children. At most he does not possess more than 3 or 4 creatures, and yet he gave this young heifer worth $50! Is it any wonder that the Dweshula church lives in a constant state of blessing?

There is much to make us glad as we approach the close of another year. The bright beautiful work in the Dweshula church is a constant joy. Then too a quite strong revival is in progress among the women of our church. Moreover we have recently had two gifts of land for church sites. Such gifts are very rare and these make us specially happy, for they secure to us and our mission and to the American Board for all time, these centers of influence which were in danger of being lost to us upon the death of the two old men who make the gifts. Chief Ndunge has given 19 acres of beautiful land, to be used for church and school house, and for a parsonage and gardens for an evangelist. On the other side of us, Goleni, one of our Christian men, has given almost 6 acres for a church and school on his farm. We have just had the government surveyor here, and now these beautiful plots are upon the chart and are being registered as the property of the American Board. A song of thanksgiving fills our hearts.

May you all have as much to make you happy when the old year dies, and may 1920 be for us all the best year of service we have yet experienced.

Mr. Cowles and Frederick unite with me in sending the Seasons Greetings.

With much love from us all,

Sincerely,

Amy B. Cowles

Death Of Will Gale

Will Gale passed away at his home in the Willows, Sunday, after an illness of several months duration. He was well known in Campbell, having been a compositor in the Press office for the past eight years.

He was a most faithful and conscientious worker, often at work when he should have been at home.

He was a native of Minnesota, where he received his early education. He was nearly 47 years old at the time of his death. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon, interment being at Pacific Grove, where his father and mother are buried.

Locals and Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wade and son, Leland were down from Alameda to enjoy Christmas with their relatives.

Leland Lancaster and wife are here from Santa Cruz, for a two-weeks' visit with his parents. Lee is feeling pretty good over his success in the physical direction of the Santa Cruz schools.

And just so, as his boys' basketball team never lost a game during the season, and of course won the championship cup. He's making good there and we're glad of it.

While courting about Christmas day, the writer called on friend J. H. Stubbe, one of the prosperous chick hatches of the Runnymede tract, near Palo Alto. He is still hustling as he did when here at Campbell, but on a much larger scale. He has enlarged his chick plant to 132 large incubators, which when running at full blast will turn out about 22,000 chicks per week. While it sounds like a neat little sum of kale to the boss hatcher.
